Information Regarding Procedures and Policies on the Use of Readers on the LSAT® by Blind and Visually Impaired Test Takers

The following information is from the Procedures and Policies on the Use of Readers on the LSAT by Blind and Visually Impaired Test Takers.

Test takers granted the use of readers as an accommodation on the LSAT may, at their option, arrange to meet or talk with their assigned reader to become acquainted with the reader and to review the procedures to be followed during the administration of the LSAT.

The test taker may meet with the reader at the Law School Admission Council's expense for a maximum of five (5) hours. The candidate can opt to reject the reader, if written notice is forwarded to LSAC five (5) days prior to the scheduled administration of the LSAT.

Readers are instructed to read the LSAT verbatim. They are not permitted to paraphrase, interpret, define words, or otherwise vary from the text. The test taker may ask the reader to spell out words and reread all or part of a text or question(s) within a section. The test taker may also direct the order in which text is read, ask the reader to scan for particular words or phrases, and request the identification of the type and location of punctuation marks.

To receive a copy of the entire Reader Policy, please contact Accommodated Testing in writing.
