Resources to Help You Prepare and Succeed

Applying to law school requires planning. LSAC is here to guide you every step of the way as you take the LSAT®, prepare, apply, and choose a law school.

Taking the LSAT A Test You Can Trust

The LSAT is the only test accepted by every law school in the U.S. and Canada. The reason is clear: The LSAT is the only test specifically designed to assess the skills needed for success in law school and beyond — namely, logical reasoning, critical reading, analytical reasoning, and writing skills. Other tests created for different purposes measure different skills.

Research consistently shows that the LSAT is the single best predictor of law school success — even better than undergraduate GPA. When you take the LSAT, you know you're getting an accurate, unbiased assessment of your ability to succeed in law school.

Law schools have a long history of considering LSAT scores as part of their overall admission decision-making processes. In 2021, more than 98% of incoming law students used the LSAT as part of their application. Individuals who are serious about law school take the LSAT.

LSAC is committed to access and equity for all test takers, providing a wide range of testing accommodations for individuals with disabilities, fee waivers for test takers who qualify, and loaner devices, internet access, and a quiet place to test for anyone requiring such assistance in order to test.
