

Professional Identity Formation

Empower students to perform at their highest capacity.

Overview

The American Bar Association (ABA) Standard 303 now requires law schools to “provide substantial opportunities to students for the development of professional identity.” LSAC offers a fully-integrated, seven-course program on professional identity formation, which can be deployed as a standalone solution or easily integrated into a law school’s existing curriculum. The course modules are taught by nationally renowned subject matter experts and cover the full scope of professional identity formation.

The PIF curriculum helps students make informed, intentional decisions about their professional identity, improves professional satisfaction, and provides a strengthened sense of purpose.

Professional Identity Formation (PIF) helps individuals realize their full potential, find their place in the legal profession, improve professional satisfaction, and provide a strengthened sense of purpose. This exploration of one’s unique experiences, skills, and abilities adds to the diversity of the profession. This program focuses on empowering students to perform at their highest capacity — inculcating resilience, adaptability, and confidence in their abilities — which will enable them to succeed academically and professionally.
