

Law School Unmasked: Save the Date

FULL TRANSCRIPT

SUSANNAH POLLVOGT: Hi everyone. I'm Susannah Pollvogt, the senior director of legal education solutions at the Law School Admission Council. Prior to joining LSAC, I was a law professor and associate dean for student success, and my job was to help students like you perform their best academically while in law school. I'm here to tell you about an exciting new program we'll be offering this summer called Law School Unmasked™.

At LSAC, we believe that everyone deserves the support and guidance they need to succeed in their journey from prelaw through practice. We created LawHub® to provide that support. The LawHub platform is designed to be a resource that provides the guidance that you need to succeed in your goals. One of LawHub's premier offerings will be the Law School Unmasked program, which will run June 7th through June 23rd. We know that you're busy. So the program will consist of short, interactive online modules designed to give you the most bang for your buck.

Topics we will cover include reading and briefing cases, participating in Socratic dialogue, effective note-taking strategies and an introduction to logical reasoning for lawyers. There will also be mock classes so you can start to envision what it will actually be like to sit in the law school classroom. This program is designed for those of you who will be starting law school this fall. If you're still in the application process, you'll want to check out our sister program, Admissions Unmasked.

So for now, simply mark your calendars. Registration will open in early May and we'll send you more information then. Our main message here is you can do this. You belong in law school, and in the profession, and we are here to support and guide you along the way.
